

https://www.stltoday.com/news/local/columns/joe-holleman/jay-nixon-gives-pointers-literally-to-jefferson-college/article\_b5e3ad4f-14c2-5994-b54d-fcdaca30be7f.html

Jay Nixon gives pointers, literally, to Jefferson College

42 min ago

Joe Holleman

Joe Holleman is a reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Former Missouri Governor Jay Nixon, left, discusses arrowheads and artifacts his family has donated to Jefferson College in honor of his late father, Jeremiah “Jerry” Nixon. Nixon is talking with library services director Lisa Pritchard and college President Raymond Cummiskey. Photo by Roger Barrentine/Jefferson College

Former Missouri Gov. Jay Nixon made some good points Thursday with Jefferson College officials, in the form of arrowheads.

Nixon was on the campus in Hillsboro to donate an extensive collections of arrowheads and other artifacts collected by his father, the late politico/lawyer Jeremiah "Jerry" Nixon.

The college plans to preserve and display the artifacts and use them for study. Nixon and his family, longtime De Soto residents, were involved closely in the establishment of the junior college.